1. INTRODUCTION

This report is set to provide the most comprehensive directory of investors investing in European XR startups over the period stretching from Q1 of 2015 through Q2 of 2019.

The map of available funding sources for XR startups aims to improve the access to capital for European XR startups. This document will also be instrumental to identify key industry players to be invited to the webinars scheduled to take place between M9 and M24 and other XR4ALL events.

Interactive technologies such as Augmented Reality (AR) and Virtual Reality (VR) (both together can be referred as eXtended Reality – XR hereinafter in the document) will transform the way people communicate, interact, and share information. After years of research and development, XR technology has reached a tipping point where it becomes accessible and allows market introduction.

Despite its potential growth, the European XR scene is relatively less known and threatened by a strong non-European competition. The European XR industry is facing several challenges and constraints, such as its fragmentation, the weak technology transfer and the lack of finance. The lack of finance will be the special focus of this document.

2. METHODOLOGY

The methodology employed in this report consists exclusively on a qualitative data analysis. Regarding the time frame, we focused on Q1,2015 to Q2,2019.

2.1 Dataset

In order to conduct the mapping, LCWB used data acquired from Dealroom and enriched it with its own database. Dealroom is a platform that helps new investors and tech companies connect with each other and share data. It enables investors to track companies' progress and decide the appropriate time to invest in them. Entrepreneurs are able to control investment interests and use Dealroom.co as their official channel for outgoing information to potential investors.

Data collection by LCWB was initiated in 2016 when the first database in VR/AR startups was set up in collaboration with the San Francisco-based The Venture Reality Fund (VR Fund). LCWB has invested time in maintaining and enlarging the database of startups and transactions by carefully monitoring on a daily basis more than 250 Google alerts LCWB has invested time in maintaining and enlarging the database of startups and transactions by carefully monitoring on a daily basis more than 250 Google alerts since January 2019. The Google alerts were set up to track EU XR companies and relevant trade associations, international organizations, think tanks, and online news publications covering the local, European, and international XR industry including funding news. LCWB also consulted relevant online databases. Interviews with investors and entrepreneurs conducted during June and July 2019 were also a great source of information to enlarge the directory. Along with the rigorous online research, LCWB kept enriching the database with the details of the companies exhibiting at the biggest VR/AR conferences, such as Laval Virtual, Digility, AWE Europe, to name but a few.

2.2 Variables and analysis

Tableau, a data visualization software, has been used for analyzing the data and prepare the tables shown below. The analysis of this deliverable consists in mapping the investors funding European XR startups and classifying these investments by vertical including the number of times each investor had invested in a particular startup. We use the term vertical to talk about a category or a sector.

All the investors mentioned in the report were crosschecked manually against Crunchbase.com to increase the data reliability. While crosschecking information, additional investors were identified and added to the database. We will proceed now to describe the different variables that we have taken into account in this exercise:

- Geographical scope

The data acquired from Dealroom included non-European Union member states such as Russia, Turkey, Israel, Norway, Switzerland and others. As many of these countries are eligible for Horizon 2020 grants and their startup ecosystem is closely linked to the European landscape, we have decided to include them in our analysis.

- Taxonomy

As for sub-industry classification, categories or verticals in XR, this study has adopted the classification introduced by The VR Fund. The VR Fund is a SF-based leading investment fund and has been focused on industry mappings since 2016. They have set up several mappings focusing as well on VR as AR. Most categories are relevant for both VR as AR: examples are 'Healthcare', 'Gaming', 'Education', 'Agency'. An agency per definition provides a wide range of custom services to a portfolio of clients, without a standardized product in place to be able to offer the solution at scale. Some verticals on the other hand are specific to either AR or VR: AR SDK (AR), Location Based VR (VR).

The taxonomy used by Dealroom only provided a small number of categories. Furthermore, it assigned several verticals per startup, something that made the analysis extremely complex. The team at LCWB decided to go over the list of startups provided by Dealroom and reassigned a vertical from the VR Fund taxonomy to each startup. It should be noted that allocating one vertical to a startup in many cases is not straightforward. In the case the startup was identified by The VR Fund, we adopted The VR Fund classification. In the case it wasn't, the XR4ALL team of analysts allocated the vertical that was mostly referenced on the startup website and in the available press.

The comprehensive list of the verticals used during this exercise is the following:

Verticals VR Fund (VR)	Verticals VR Fund (AR)	FINAL Taxonomy

- Type of investment rounds

Dealroom provides clear definitions for the classification of the investment rounds. In general, LCWB followed the classification of Dealroom. However, when the type of investment round was not available, LCWB looked for the information in Crunchbase and Google news. Crunchbase is a well know platform for finding business information about private and public companies and Google news is a news aggregator and app developed by Google.

When LCWB encountered conflicting information the definition of Dealroom prevailed. The classification used by Dealroom is described below. No clarification by Dealroom was provided for merger and debt.

Type of round	Definition
Grant	Government grant, incubator grants, university grants
Angel	When only angel investors made the investment
Seed	(for 0-2 million deals) when the round happened 0-2 years after foundation
Early VC	When the round type is not mentioned and the amount is between 2 and 20 million SERIES A,B,C...
Late VC	Rounds type not mentioned after Series A,B... or Round happening 5 years after the foundation
Growth equity	Investment made by Private Equity firms (round > 20 million in general)
Acquisition	Majority stake, acquired, controlling stake, (acquisition amount = valuation if no mention of stake %)
Merger
Debt
Convertible	Convertible notes, convertible loans
Lending capital	Working capital for lending platforms (ex: LendInvest, Duologi)
